Abstract of the Disclosure

A method of encrypting an object includes generating a cryptographic key, using the cryptographic key to initialize a cryptographic algorithm, and applying the algorithm to the object. Accordingly, an encrypted object is formed. The key is generated by 5   combining key splits derived from different sources. One of the key splits is a biometric value derived from and corresponding to a particular person.

Patent Application   (Edward M. SCHEIDT)